Since its origin in 1995, the Greater Philadelphia Commercial Recycling Council has provided its members with a forum for discussing recycling and related environmental issues in the Delaware Valley. Members hail from both large and small businesses and institutions and from urban and suburban communities. Members also come from the five counties of Southeastern Pennsylvania, as well as communities in Delaware and southern New Jersey.

(GREATER PHILADELPHIA REGION)

The Council's mission is to support environmental managers through peer-to-peer consultation, state-of-the-art information, professional educational opportunities, technical assistance, and networking. Our bottom line is that environmentally responsible actions by businesses and institutions are about efficiency and smart resource management. Council members can have a direct influence on policy and economic development initiatives for the Delaware Valley. GPCRC is registered as a 501(c) 3 non-profit.
